THE 1967 FORD MUSTANG

See inside for Weil-McLain Barstool with Commemorative 135th Anniversary logo

Founded in 1881 in Chicago by Isadora and Benjamin Weil, Weil-McLain was originally named Weil Brothers. In 1918, after acquiring a main supplier, J.H. McLain Company, the company was renamed Weil-McLain and boiler plant operations moved to Michigan City, Indiana. Throughout the 20th century, Weil-McLain grew to be the largest U.S. manufacturer of cast iron boilers and a leader in the hydronic industry. Today, Weil-McLain maintains its status as a leader in hydronic heating with approximately 600 employees focused on providing Simplified Solutions for our Complex World.
